SOUTH BRUNSWICK RECEIVES STATE FUNDING FOR NEW ADA PLAYGROUND AT REICHLER PARK

SOUTH BRUNSWICK, NJ (JULY 25). South Brunswick Township is proud to announce the receipt of state funding from Legislative District 16—Senator Andrew Zwicker and Assemblymembers Roy Freiman and Mitchelle Drulis—to support the development of a new ADA-accessible playground at Reichler Park, advancing the Township’s commitment to inclusive and accessible recreational spaces for all residents.

Assemblymembers Roy Freiman and Mitchelle Drulis visited Reichler Park to formally present the check, joined by South Brunswick officials and community members. In attendance were Mayor Charlie Carley, Deputy Mayor Kenneth Bierman, Councilwoman Archana (Ann) Grover, Township Manager Bryan Bidlack, Public Relations Officer Jennifer Poppy, and Administrative Assistant Leah Haas.

“This project reflects South Brunswick’s continued focus on ensuring our public spaces are welcoming and accessible to everyone,” said Mayor Carley. “We’re grateful to our state representatives for recognizing the importance of this effort and helping us make it a reality.”

Also attending were South Brunswick resident Sharon Ferraro and her daughter Alyssa. Sharon has been a passionate advocate for accessibility improvements throughout the Township, and the new playground will directly benefit Alyssa and other children with disabilities. Sharon invited other local families who will benefit from the park upgrades, underscoring the widespread community support for the initiative.

The new ADA-compliant playground will feature inclusive design elements that allow children of all abilities to play and interact side-by-side.

South Brunswick Township remains dedicated to enhancing public spaces in ways that serve the needs of all residents.
